

Green cuisine

Art-Deco grandeur comes in a deliciously small package.

INTERIOR DESIGNER GREG NATALE OF GREG NATALE DESIGN

"With the 1920s Art-Deco Regency period of the building in mind, we wanted to create an updated traditional kitchen in line with the grandeur of the apartment. The small space limited the number of finishes we could use, so we chose three in total. The black, white and green colour scheme works back to the whole apartment. The doors have been panelled in a simple single step to add a more traditional silhouette and the overhead cupboards have a glass front to display the client's beautiful glass and dinnerware. We chose green, as there was no natural light and we wanted to really make the space pop with a bit of vibrancy."

Marble marvel

A small space has a lavish revamp.

"We wanted the bathroom to fit in with the grand 1920s Art-Deco Regency architectural style of the building. We used traditional styles, but gave them a fresh, updated look. The space was small, so we kept the number of different materials to a minimum. The black and white theme ties in with the kitchen and the whole apartment. The client loved the idea of rich materials like the marble with plenty of texture and movement."
